What Class

few changes occurred over the summer. One new addition to the school was six minutes between CLASSES, which gave students a chance to catch up with each other. A second change was the eighth grade moved. Each school day started a little later, which meant everyone got a few extra minutes of sleep. The grading scale was lowered, and that made it easier for people to excel in CLASS. When asked their opinion, the ninth and tenth graders gave theirs. Some students commented on the fact that there was no competition between CLASSES. Others spoke on the size of the classrooms and the grading scale. They also commented on the fact that some people were not very outgoing. Overall, the ninth and tenth graders were really optimistic.

WHAT CLASS!

Senior Lara Battista and sophomore Alex Smith think about what the year is going to be like and wish it was still summer.

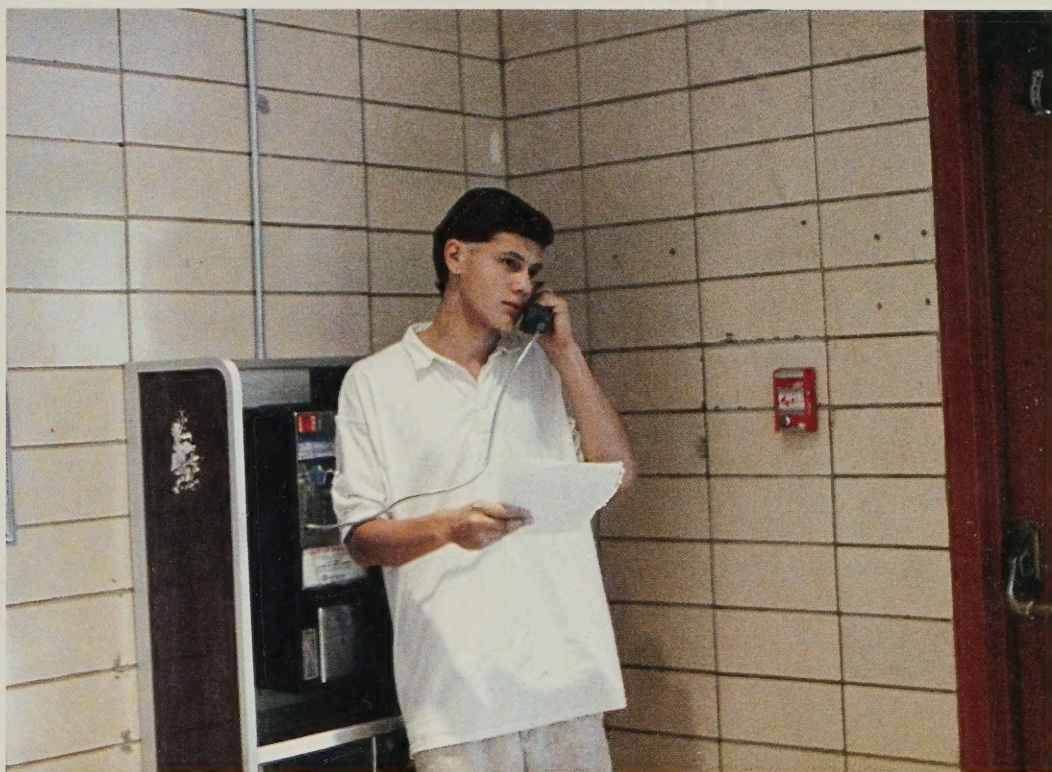

Sophomore Diana Blair and senior Betsy Atkinson show their true quality of friendship, in true James Monroe spirit.

Senior Martin Thorsted makes an important phone call to see how a friend is doing who was feeling ill.

Senior Jason Gallant looks surprised when told he passed a chemistry test.

Coach Green licks his lips looking at the delicious lunch that's in store for that day.

A Touch of Style

There was an abundance of style shown throughout the school year. There were stylish teachers, stylish events, and, of course, stylish students. As the year progressed, this "style" seemed to build upon itself. It was seen during big events such as the "Talent Show," "Sights and Sounds," Homecoming, the Russian visit, football, hockey, and all during the school year, both in and out of school. These events proved that the students at James Monroe did, indeed, have — "A Touch of Style."

Stylish dancing is demonstrated by King & Queen Darrell Durante and Tammie Coghill.

Out and About

For serious Jayem seniors a break from school was treasured. It was time for everyone to get away and enjoy their surroundings. Common places to visit were the river, the mall, McDonalds, sporting events, or downtown. The downtown area has become especially popular recently with the opening of many popular stores, including a bookstore and various eateries. The atmosphere was both attractive and relaxing for students.

Seniors Mary Sledd Shelhorse and Liz Lucey make the most of the local bookstore. Main Street Books is also co-owned by each of their mothers.

Members of the class of '89, Jill Miller, Donna Krauss, Liz Lucey, Mary Sledd Shelhorse, Kevin O'Toole, Jennifer Mann, Betsy Atkinson, J.J. Vogltanz, Courtney Murphy, Tara May, Libbie Farmer, Ellen Sease, Molly Tully, and Laura Mathews enjoy a sunny day downtown.

Lara Battista, senior, tolerates being nagged by her Aunt Rosemarie about the hole in her pants.

Seniors Chris Carter, Mart VanLear, Kevin O'Toole, Chad Randall, Adam Clingenpeel, Carter Hansen, Ronnie Rackey, John Nelson, and John Beck all enjoy a home hockey game. The boys were avid fans of the girls team this season.

Sporting their class after school, senior Tiffany Jones and junior Robbie Coleman enjoy the early fall weather.

Singing during the Talent Show is senior, Andy Withers. His performance was a big success with the crowd.

Sterling Performers Meet Classic Artists

The 1988 Spring Talent Show was quite an evening of entertainment. Ms. White and her students worked hard to prepare for this big event and there was much talent to be seen. Acts included a concert pianist performance, a lip sync, and two dance routines. In the end, a small group stood out above the rest. R.J. Luna, who played a piece by Chopin, and Erica Pratt, Brenda Webster, Yvonne Lucas, and Lashonda Lucas, who danced to "Overweight Lovers," tied for first place. Tied for second place were Keller Williams and Susan Curry. Frances Buck won third place with her lip sync to Michael

Jackson's "The Way U Make Me Feel."

"Sights and Sounds" was another big success. Under the direction of Ms. Carr and Mr. Johnson, the students combined their talents to create a spectacular show. Drama performed a skit, the band played four songs including: "How Will I Know" and "The Greatest Love of All," and Ms. Carr's choruses sang throughout the night. Men's Chorus sang "Johnny B. Goode" and Mixed Chorus sang "Charlie Brown." The Monroe Singers performed "Get A Job," "Surfin' USA," and "Barbara Ann."

Mr. Johnson's art classes displayed their work in the cafeteria. This gave other students and their parents a chance to see their finest creations.

Mrs. Hamway's drama class performs during "Sights and Sounds." Those on stage were: Victoria Fink, junior, Amy Bowie, graduate, Tara May, senior, April Sessions, senior, Stephanie Lewis, junior, Sophie Whiteside, graduate, Molly Tully, senior, Patricia Lainez, graduate, Chip Tydings, graduate, Tiffany Govenides, graduate, and Lara Battista, senior.

Adreka Pierce and Eureka Jackson, freshmen, perform "The Greatest Love of All." Their song was a hit with the audience.

Can you guess who this is? Freshmen Brian Borchers and B.J. Campbell perform during "Sights and Sounds."

Senior Hunter Moore plays guitar for "The Procrastinators." The band did not compete but provided entertainment after the show.

R.J. Luna plays a piece by Chopin in the Talent Show. This performance tied him for first place.

Coach Rich Serbay and Coach Mike Roadcap are sure of victory against the Knights. The winning spirit was seen on the faces of teammates and coaches alike.

Imagine October 3-8, 1988

IMAGINE a night that was filled with enthusiasm. That was homecoming night. The week before the dance was the most active. First there were hall decorations and spirited people. The football game was a success, 21-0. The dance was absolutely a fantasy. The court was a dignified one. Freshmen representatives were Derick Byrd and Jessica Hallberg. Sophomore representatives were Joby Coakley, Eric Trout, Paige Perkins, and Tanglea

Wallace. Juniors were Kimber Richardson, Princess, Tyler Scott, Laura Reeder, Shawn Williams, Prince, Mark Thorsted, and Stephen Mann. The mighty seniors were proud to present Andy Withers, Mary Sledd Shelhorse, Eric Armstead, Molly Tully, Glen Lanford, Tonya Bundy, Larry Trout, Libbie Farmer, King Darrell Durante, and Queen Tammie Coghill. The evening was what many imagined.

The varsity cheerleaders entertained the crowds by dancing with the "football players." Attempting to keep their outfits on was more entertaining than the dancing.

Cheerleader Vicky Fink, junior, drops the candy for the football player. This was one of our many pep rallies.

Junior Warren Lewis and Senior Marcus Beale listen intently to the referee's explanation of the call. Despite all calls against the Jackets, they defeated Spotsylvania 21-0.

Not only students show their spirit for homecoming. Decked in black and orange are Mrs. Woodward, Mrs. Ripley, Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Chandler, Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Embrey, and Mrs. Lasowski.

Stepping Out In Class

chool was not the only thing on people's minds. Students could be found everywhere: downtown, at the mall, and just all around. Dances, football games, and other school activities were more places that people could go with their friends. The students at James Monroe took great pride in keeping up with grades and having their social lives, too. When they were not in school the Jackets could be found doing something constructive and fun.

Freshmen Robbie Gibson and Andrea Stahler have an interesting chat while walking to the student parking lot. The topic of conversation may have been homework or plans for the weekend.

Senior Kim Faulconer looks astonished when told she must play. Amy Mitchell, junior, and Ellen Franken, senior, keep a close eye on the opposing team.

During study hall, sophomores Leslie Muir and companion Neil Day debate over the significance of the literature, A Separate Piece.

Playing his trumpet solo at the half-time presentation, senior Theodore King pleases the crowd.

Enthusiastic Faces

Enthusiastic faces were not only found in the classroom, they were found everywhere. The best times students had were outside the classroom with their friends. Nothing could possibly beat having a few laughs with a friend between classes or after school. The smiling faces could be found everywhere from the school to downtown Fredericksburg. There were the smiling, excitement-filled faces of the spectators, and then there was the excitement found in the athlete's themselves. From student, to spectator, to athlete, to just another face in the crowd of smiles, unhappiness was a word not in their vocabulary.

Before he has to go down and act as manager, Calvin Ware, senior, catches a good look at football practice. He has been manager throughout his high school career.

Two foreign exchange students, Anna Sward and Ellen Franken, both seniors, are enjoying pizza before the hockey game. Courtland did not show so the lady jackets had their easiest win.

Tony Randin, Stephanie Mann, Janet Skinner, and Kim Faulconer are posing in front of the camera before football and hockey practice.

Liz Lucey, Courtney Murphy, Molly Tully, and Kevin O'Toole may not all be Irish but have the 'ole Irish spirit. Downtown Fredericksburg was a hang-out spot for students, spring and fall.

Three freshmen, John Conway, James Shelhorse, and Todd Clare, enjoy an after school snack in front of the school.

Tangela Wallace, Theresa Turner, Tammie Coghill, and Jennifer Jones are having a little fun before the basketball game. The basketball team was 10:6.

Staring at his cast, Alfonso Brooks, senior, wishes that he didn't have one. The football player was injured three weeks before the end of the season and could not play the rest of the season.

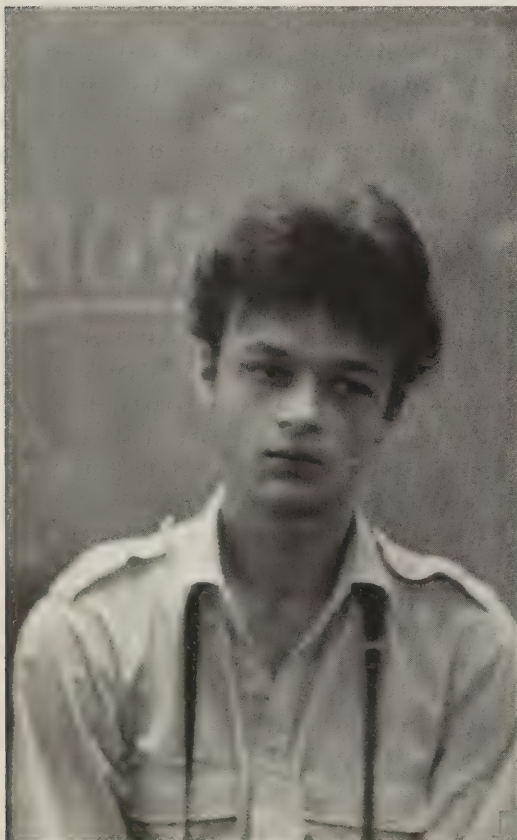

In the French class, a Russian student explains the differences she found between the United States and the Soviet Union. After the students toured the school, one student was quoted saying, "Everyone smiles a lot and is very friendly."

Students Reach Out In Peace

A special event happened to prove that peace can survive between the United States and the Soviet Union. Students from the U.S. visited the Soviet Union to meet General Secretary Gorbachev and to tour the country. In turn, the U.S. and Soviet students came to the United States. Their first visit was Washington D.C. to see the country's capital. Then the students came to James Monroe, a real "American" high school.

The reaction of the students was one of reaching out in friendship. Addresses and small cultural gifts were exchanged along with smiles and long-living memories. If the visit was any indication, Peace and Cooperation can exist between the two countries.

One of the Russian students listens to Mrs. Sokol, of the Social Studies Department, to learn about our government. The students were very interested in the current affairs.

While showing the Russian students around the school, Former Assistant Principal Mrs. Blackmon answers the many questions that were asked. She felt the exchange program was a success.

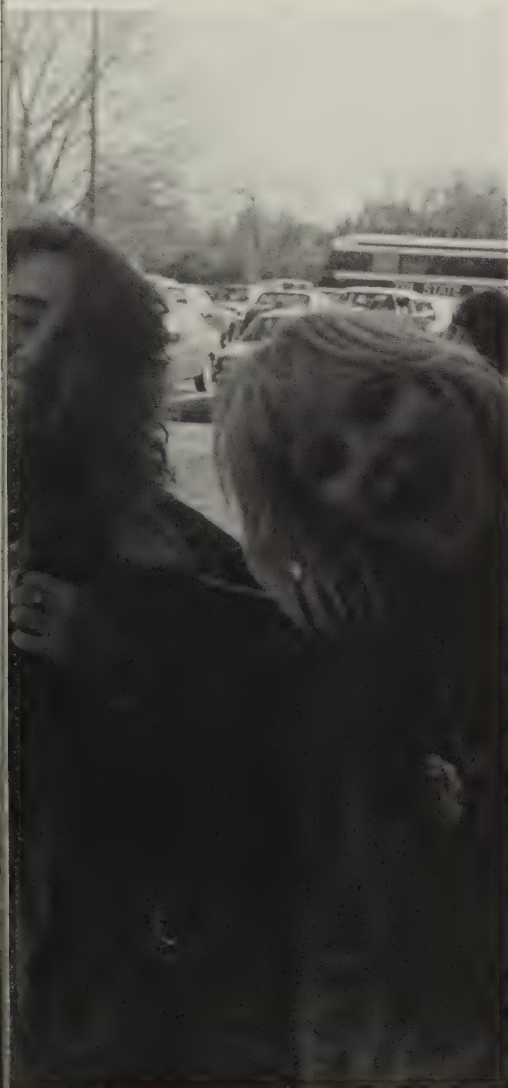

After getting off the bus, two Welsh students anticipate meeting their new friends. That night, the students entertained their newly-found friends by singing songs ranging from old Beatle favorites to the Welsh National Anthem.

Cherishing Memories

Visitors were welcomed into the school and sang their way into the hearts of the students and faculty. The Abergele Welsh Choir from Wales came to Fredericksburg to share their music. The students toured Fredericksburg, went shopping, and had the scare of their lives at the Jaycee's Haunted House between their singing performances. One Welsh student, Katie Williams, was quoted as saying, "The United States was as brilliant as we expected, a bit better." The week ended in tearful good-byes with memories of a lifetime.

Two Welsh visitors see their first glimpse of James Monroe. The students enjoyed coming to school with their hosts and one student commented that the Welsh teachers seem to be more strict.

Katie Williams and Katie Davies, two Welsh guests, await their visit of Fredericksburg. When asked how she liked America, Katie Davies said, "It is brilliant; really sound."

Seniors Susan Ebert and Jon Harris take in the new prom arrivals out on the balcony.

Classic Occasion

The students were very busy the week of prom. All the girls had discussed what dress they were going to wear. The boys scurried about making dinner reservations and tuxedo rentals. When that night arrived the city seemed to light up with a spectacular variety of lovely young ladies and handsome gentlemen. The prom was held in the ballroom at Mary Washington College. It was an enchanted evening after all preparations were finished. There were a few problems before the prom.

One problem experienced was that the theme and theme-song did not match. The theme was "Two Occasions," but the song was "Stairway to Heaven." After a re-vote the theme and theme song matched to "Two Occasions." The court was just dazzling including the king, Eric Bates, and queen, Jennifer Edge.

Senior Jennifer Mann and her date wait for some friends they were meeting.

Senior Tiffany Jones and junior Robbie Coleman sit down after dancing.

Creative Talents Displayed and Tested

The science fair and lip sync contest were huge spring successes. Many students showed their creative talents. The grand prize winner of the science fair was John Blackmon. Physical science winners were first to third Becky Barnett, Tammy Brooks, John Zaloudek, and Alexander Sheffield. The winners in the earth science department were Mark Miller, Lewis Fickett, and Christie Harold. The winners in the biology department were Jamie Griles, Matt Hooper, and Tyler Scott.

The lip sync contest was also a success for the second year in a row. The teachers made a guest appearance with their leader of the pack, Mr. Jim Bailey, assistant principal.

Before and After School

Many of the students have more than school on their minds. Most of the time J.M. students were found everywhere, from the mall to downtown. When school was not in session, students did many of the typical "high school" student activities, like shopping, eating together, and just hanging out. Some students liked school so much that they stayed in the lobby or on the grounds hours past 3:05 P.M.

Senior Lara Battista pulls a few weeds before going to the mall.

Freshman John Blosser walks to the door before school starts that autumn day.

Seniors Laura Mathews, Jennifer Mann, and Tara May take a walk downtown after a day in school.

A touch of . . .

Club Jayem

School just wasn't school without a few extra curricular activities to top an afternoon off. Organizations were a way of breaking a daily schedule. The regular day was over when the afternoon bell rang, but for some the day didn't end there. For some it was languages, Honor Society, SADD, or the Key Club.

Things could not always be put in matter of priority, especially when one was enrolled in two or three different clubs. Despite the hassles and shuffling of schedules it was always profitable in the end.

The individual organizations throughout the year held various fund raisers. Each club chose an activity that sported some class and raised some money at the same time. This money could be put towards field trips that had educational value.

The combined efforts of the organizations have contributed to the success of making James Monroe one of the most socially alive and spirited schools in the area. Organizations played an important role in many of the students' lives, from breaking a regular routine to playing an important role in education.

Students Serving

The National Honor Society sponsored many big events. For instance, the blood mobile was sponsored by them. The faculty members who were kept busy sponsoring the N.H.S. were Mrs. Meredith Cuddy and Mrs. Lou Cralle. Another of their outstanding accomplishments was sending a child to the National Easter Seal Camp.

In the spring, members at Senior April Sessions takes her Honor society status seriously, as she lights her candle.

Key to Giving

Mr. Blackburn was the new sponsor for the Key Club. New activities were planned for the benefit of the community; these included leaf raking, collecting canned food for the Salvation Army, various school related services, a donkey basketball game for charity, and many others. They tried to develop young leaders in school while serving the community. When asked to sum up the members, Mr. Blackburn said with a smile, "Nice, hardworking guys — they do the work."

Seniors Carter Hansen and Ronnie Rackey try to think up another exciting activity for the club.

Taking Care of Business

All thirty-four of the Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) were very enthused about the work they accomplished. Activities included: selling turkey notes at Thanksgiving, supplying a Thanksgiving dinner for two needy families, Easter fund raisers, and contributions to ASK (Association for the Study of Childhood Cancer). Mrs. Tully led the pride of the FBLA. Some of her top members were Molly Tully, Grace house, zoology, and how those programs worked.

Braxton, Tammie Coghill, Tara May, Keisha Carter, Monica Johnson, Tiffany Jones, Jennifer Jones, John

In November, DECA held a Leadership Seminar; in December, there was the naming of "Mr. DECA", and in January was the well-known Leggett Takeover Day. This provided an excellent opportunity for students to obtain first-hand experience on the management and the operation of a major department store. Each student was assigned a store partner with whom they worked in one department. This project was not only beneficial to the students, but to the community. Overall DECA had another prosperous year. Officers for the DECA club were President Sarah Yeager, First Vice-President Ruby Baker, Second Vice-President Michael Barleston, Recording Secretary Sharon Deshazo, Corresponding Secretary Sherrie Knight, Treasurer Sharon Wright, Reporter Ray Atwell, Historian Troy Turner, and Parliamentarian Faye Jackson. Representatives were Joby Coakley, Emily Tankersley, Rebecca Moran, Kathy Glancy, and Marvin Tarry.

TCB

The Distributive Education Club had become increasingly popular among the students at James Monroe. Beginning with the installation of officers and new members in September, the DECA club began a long series of exciting events. In October, the club held its annual Fall Rally at Kings Dominion. Groups of 20-25 students were led by Kings Dominion representatives to get a "behind the scenes" look at wardrobe, ware-

With so many members (54), German Club sponsor Mrs. Kelly had to arrange many exciting activities for the group. Among the events were trips to Elsie's German Deli, a ski trip, and a fall convention at Busch Gardens. The club also worked after school selling gummi bears. Leading the activities along with Mrs. Kelly were club President Michelle Perry, Vice-President Tyler Scott, and Secretary/Treasurer Jenny Freeman. The German Club also participated in Jayem's Foreign Language Week and Dinner and a spring convention with the Virginia Organization of German Students.

Fredericksburg's Future Learns Now

The Future Homemakers of America were busy as usual throughout the school year. Not only did they have normal fund raisers but attended several leadership conferences: one at Orange County High School, a cluster meeting in Baltimore, Maryland, and a State Leadership Conference in April. More significant to the community, the group also prepared a special dinner for the area homeless. The FHA president was Cheryl Cooper, Vice-President was Lisa Cannedy, Treasurer Frances Buck, Secretary Natasha Deyo, and Parliamentarian Pamela Strader. FHA was sponsored by Ms. Doris Darden.

Class Act Journals

Business Editor	Tami Stanton	Design Editors	Ellen Franken
Copy Editors	Lara Battista Sledd Shelhorse	Photography Editor	Anna Sward Amy Herndon

This year's yearbook and newspaper staffs were plagued by the traditional dreaded deadline syndrome. Normally friendly and outgoing people turned into monsters of madness.

Mrs. Matalavage and Mr. Blackburn were certainly no exception to this syndrome. Each yearbook sponsor was in his first year, so struggles and tough lessons abounded.

Senior editors were relied upon heavily for their expertise. These seniors were Amy Herndon, Tami Stanton, Lara Battista, Ellen Franken, Anna Sward, and Mary Sledd Shelhorse. Altogether however, this year's yearbook staff somehow pulled together when it counted to produce a bigger book for the same money.

Mrs. Zacchini had a young staff for newspaper. She was seen pulling her hair out often in attempts to meet deadlines. The result was usually very professional, however.

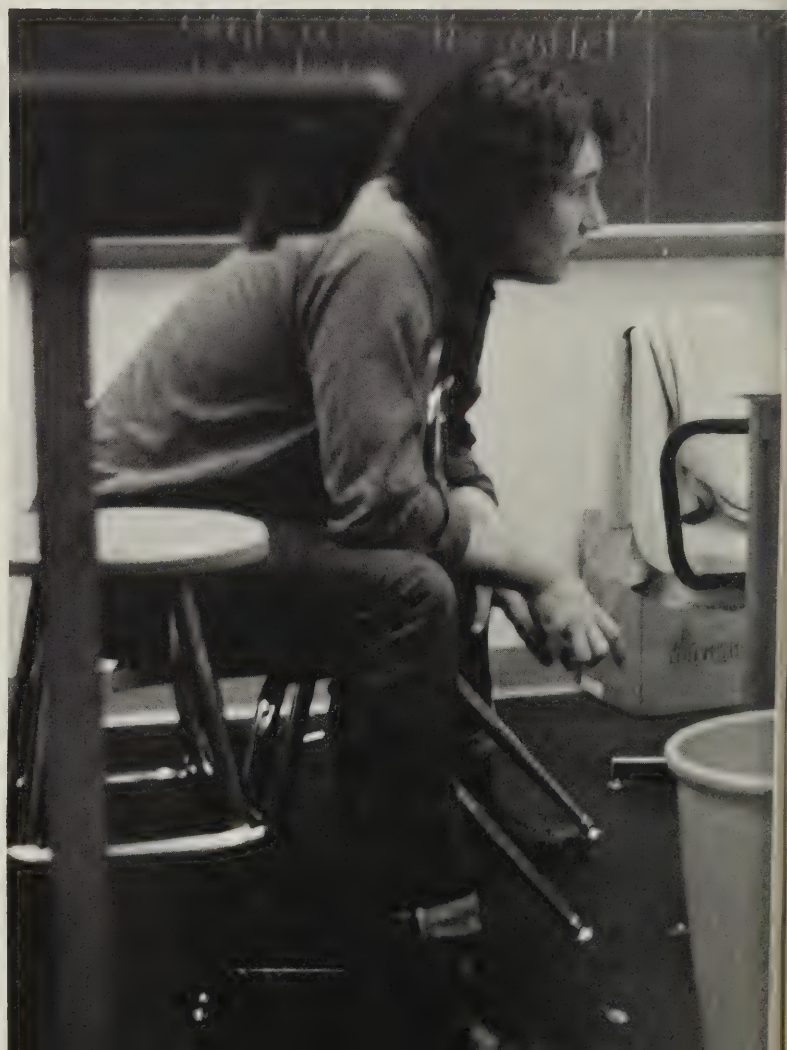

The Spotlight newspaper and the Monroe Echo yearbook were journals of Jacket existence, and were definitely in a class by themselves.

Dianna Blair, sophomore, gives a quick glance at an opposing camera. Seniors Jason Gallant and Anna Sward work diligently on finishing a layout.

Hunter Cherwick, freshman, takes a quick stretch before continuing with the assignment given to him during Spotlight.

Jack Rose, senior, debates in his mind what sort of things should be placed in the next newspaper issue.

Mary Sledd Shelhorse, senior, contemplates the topic of her story for the Echo.

Senior Tara May supports Stephanie Lewis, junior, during a play that was put on for some English classes.

Stephanie Lewis, Christine Palumko, and Sarah Stein may seem crazy sometimes but when it comes to political views they choose their parties and stick with them.

In A Class By Themselves

The students of Jayem were an example of class that one could not ignore. Without the students there would be no school, and no acts to follow. Words to describe the student body are academics, athletic, artistic, and vocational.

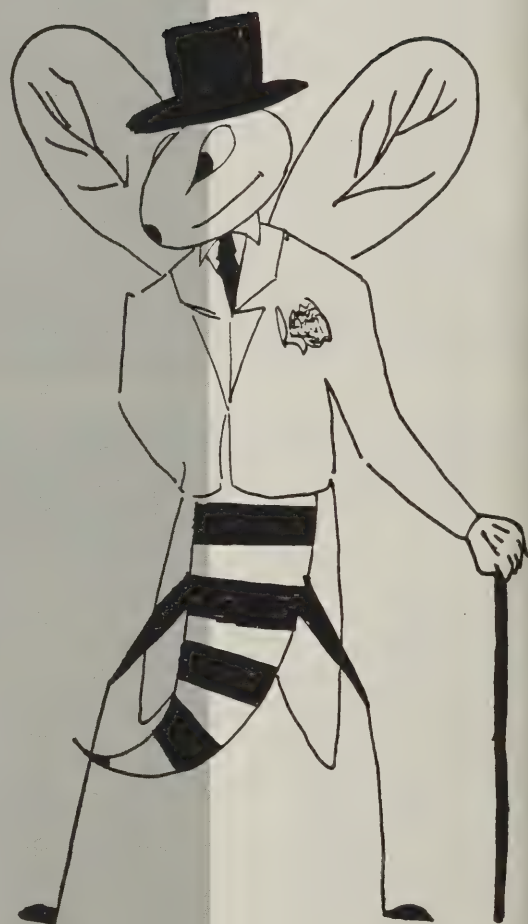

With the eighth grade having been moved back to Walker Grant the freshman class was trampled once more. For many ninth graders the excitement was still alive about being in high school.

The sophomores, on the other hand, were no longer the middle men. The majority of sophomores were now looking towards their junior year in high school.

The busiest class had to have been the junior class. The realization of becoming a senior had not hit them until now. When the word prom came into mind the word money entered along with it. For it was their turn at the expenses.

The almighty seniors roamed the halls with pride and dignity. Pampering and kidding underclassmen seemed to go along with planning their future lives. Senior privileges seemed to insure a happy final year.

Our students, although varied, are all respected and honored, personalizing the ideals of James Monroe. This was a year for a touch of class.

Seniors Jill Miller, Courtney Murphy, Betsy Atkinson, Donna Kraus, Molly Tully, Mary Sledd Shelhorse, Ellen Sease, Laura Mathews, Libbie Farmer, Tara May, Liz Lucey, Jennifer Mann, J.J. Vogltanz, and Kevin O'Toole spend a relaxing afternoon downtown. The group chose a beautiful day to do so.

Senior Academics Spell Success

Every student put some effort into their work. Then there were those who gave a little more effort. Making the honor roll was quite a big thing the first nine weeks. In fact there were more seniors on the honor roll than any other class. Seniors had really motivated themselves to do the best they could. In fact, the first nine weeks, there were 54 seniors on the honor roll as opposed to 18 freshmen, 17 sophomores, and 27 juniors. That really told people the seniors meant business.

Beyond Surviving

Many high school seniors had no idea what they were going to do after graduation. That was a pretty "touchy" subject for most. "Going to college," was the most frequent answer given when asked about the future. The hard work of high school paid off as the fear, the excitement of the future had gotten a step closer. There were also those who said "I haven't thought about the future." Two things could be said though concerning seniors: they will survive. And lastly give them the credit and encouragement to reach their goals and dreams.

In no hurry, Krista Stearns heads to class.

MOST ARTISTIC

To be creative — by the rightful definition — means the ability to create. To be creative means to make the ordinary look different. Soo Lee and Ben Howson have shown true artisite ability in every aspect of the word, through drawing, poetry, fashion, and the diction they use. Because of those traits, they were voted the most artistic of the senior class.

MOST SPIRITED/ MOST ATHLETIC

At James Monroe, “school spirit” meant just one thing. The belief that JM was the best. Sometimes that belief was doubted, but those with real faith never wondered if it was the best or not. Molly Tully and John Nelson were common sights at games and in the halls, showing their spirit. Darrell Durante and Sherry Meyer showed their spirit through supporting athletics. Their full effort was something no one could take away.

Darrell Durante shows Sherry Meyer some football techniques.

Molly Tully and John Nelson are examples of what true spirit is.

Seniors Ronnie Rackey and Chad Randall show one another what's up a head in the game.

Seniors Tiffany Bryant and Kim McGlue study for a test the period before.

Seniors Robby Ayers, Ronnie Rackey, Jeff Burkett, and Glen Lanford lift weights to improve their physique.

Biggest Flirt

Flirtatious — a tease, overly friendly — anyway you describe it, the senior class pointed the flirtiest out with ease. Betsy Atkinson, Danny Howard, and Corey Dawson were voted the biggest flirts of the class. All had mastered the art of flirting in their own individual ways.

Friendliest

Friendly was a word that definitely fit Molly Tully and Calvin Ware. They were always smiling and willing to help those who needed it. Wherever they went, somebody always got helped. Whenever people were down and feeling blue, Molly and Calvin had their arms open and a shoulder to cry on.

The shyest people are usually associated with the people who go unnoticed. This however is not always the case — there are always exceptions.

Two exceptions for the class of '89 were Bill Keller and Soo Lee, who were voted the shyest.

FUNNIEST/ BEST SMILE

Usually school was a serious matter, but not for class clowns Martin Thorsted and Teresita Grant. The two of them helped lift up a little of that seriousness by adding some laughter to students as well as to the faculty. Alongside laughter and smiles came the two best. With original and great to look at smiles were Darrell Durante, Sherry Meyer, and Courtney Murphy. Even on blue days their smiles cheered up a room.

Late to lunch, senior Kim McGlue reaches for her tray.

Senior Angela Howard checks the pressure gauge on the equipment.

Julie Aamdori and Rick Starling demonstrate their taste for success.

Senior Chris Overman takes part in a class discussion.

BEST DRESSED/ MOST LIKELY TO SUCCEED

Many people look good, but then there are those who look perfect. The two that really caught people's eyes, Chad Randall and Sherry Meyer, were the best looking seniors inside the school. Along with looking the best was doing the best. On the top of the list were Julie Amadori and Rick Starling. The hard work had paid off 100%. The term "Strive to do your best" had been in their vocabulary for years.

NONCONFORMISTS

Being an individual means a lot to very few people. That was not the case as far as non-conformists Jack Rose and Lara Battista were concerned. To them individuality was everything. "Jack is a really different guy," commented a fellow classmate. Others agreed that Jack was "a really nice person, who walks to the beat of his own drum." Lara had a comment about her "out of the ordinary" friend. "He's one of the easiest people for me to relate to." Both students wondered who would carry on the name in the future.

Juniors Give It Their All

Heading toward the top of the high school scholastic ladder, the juniors have worked very hard. They were growing into mature jackets. The class of "90" felt important in the contributing of the academic and extracurricular atmosphere. For example, they tackled their hardest schedule, chose from more electives, prepared for the well-known, but dreaded Scholastic Aptitude Tests, and finally planned the traditional prom. The juniors were able to decorate, pay for, and Junior Vicky Fink breaks into a laugh as she dances along with a pillow person at the homecoming pep rally.

Juniors Sport Their Class

The juniors had a major planning period of their lives. They wrote colleges and sent applications and prepared for the different tests needed to be accepted. They ordered rings and got their licenses. Also, they began to learn the real meanings of responsibility and freedom, although sometimes it didn't feel like it. Vicki Fink thinks as a junior you are "not old enough to have responsibilities but you're still young enough to act like a baby."

The juniors had a lot of responsibility in preparing for the prom on May 20, 1989, which was D.J.ed by Lyn Grayson at Great Hall, Mary Washington College.

Sophomore Style

Being a sophomore had its ups and downs. As a sophomore, a student had the chance to be dependent on their parents and not seriously worry about anything. Tenth grade was the perfect place to be — too old to be “little freshmen” yet still young to act like a child once in a while. Some of the highlights of being a sophomore were: not having to take social studies for a year, and only having one year left of physical education.

At the beginning of their sophomore year, nothing seemed that important to students, but as the year went on, they began to think about exams. Then, as thoughts of summertime and vacation entered their minds, students began to have questions like: “To which college do I want to apply?”, “What kind of job or career do I want after I leave school?”, “Do I really have the kind of grades to pursue the kind of future that I want?”, etc. But then they realized that as a sophomore, they did not have to push themselves so hard because they still had one year to bring up their grades and ready themselves for “responsibility.”

Don't Pick On Us!

Most of the freshmen enjoyed the year. When asked about her freshmen year, Ronnie Wallace answered, "It's better than being an eighth grader, but we are the youngest again and we can't yell at the older people." She didn't enjoy being a freshman and neither did Trina Thomas, but she enjoyed being out of middle school and in a high school. She said, "I only have 3 or 4 more years left in high school and I am going to enjoy them." These were different viewpoints but next year they will be calling the Class of '93 "little freshmen." Remember, as Faith Ann Culver stated, "... Everybody was once a freshmen, too." Also, remember freshmen, as Tonya Parker said, "We still have a whole lot to achieve so start achieving."

FRESHMAN CLASS

Full of laughter, Rambunctious, Energetic, Shy (Sike!), Hopeful, Mischievous, Excitable, Neat

The freshmen were working their way to the top. "To finish school you must not quit," stated Ricardo Morton. They were scared, young freshmen at the beginning of the year and have now grown up. Next year they will not be the lowest on the ladder to the top. They had to keep trying to go on no matter what. As Melissa Renninger said, "We still have a long way to go, but don't give up."

The most positive aspects of being a freshman were having a title (freshman, not eighth grader), being on a jv team, and selling/eating donuts during exams.

Administrators: Taking Care of Business

Mr. Nothern hadn't been here very long but many of the students thought of him as someone to whom they could talk. He was a principal and a friend.

The assistant principal, Mr. Bailey, and the administrative assistant, Mr. Burch, were two new enforcers at James Monroe. Mr. Bailey was usually busy talking with parents of children who had misbehaved. Not only was Mr. Burch teaching Advanced English, but he was also making sure that punishment was handed-out for tardies. If a student was tardy or skipped Saturday School, Mr. Burch always "called them down."

Throughout the year, all three administrators helped teachers, staff, and students get their work done.

Teaching: New Faces and New Ideas

The teachers worked hard on making the school a better place. There were many new teachers, including Ms. Smith, Mr. Blackburn, Mrs. Crismon, Mrs. Vandermade, and Miss Cooper. Miss Cooper, not much on publicity, stated, "My favorite part about working at James Monroe is working with young people." She also said that she enjoyed the challenge that they gave her.

Looking handsome and distinguished is Mr. Bob Waddell, known for being a social studies teacher, administrative assistant, and morning announcement maker.

Mrs. Vandermade, the new librarian, enjoyed working with the students although they gave her a hard time. She enjoyed her work and stated, "I'll never forget James Monroe or the students."

The faculty did their best to help the student body get a good education.

A Touch of . . .

Academy Awards

Academics were a major role in every student's life. All those daily averages, homework grades, quizzes, and tests added up every time report cards came around. How we measured ourselves academically appeared at the end of every nine week grading period.

To enrich the academic experiences, the library not only offered a quiet place to work or study, but a chance to look into some interests one might have. Along with these choices and through the wide range of courses available in such fields as business, academics, and vocational areas, students were able to obtain a strong feel for what to work towards.

All of these ideas, including the qualified and helpful teaching staff, combined to make James Monroe an academic force to be reckoned with in the community — providing that the students learned this way with academics.

Senior Laura Mathews concentrates on an assignment in Spanish IV class. This assignment was due in by the end of the class period.

After school, Kathy Harris, junior, and Jim Fenwick, senior, get ready to go to their extracurricular activities.

After school, students wait for the bus to arrive so that they can go home.

Mrs. Matalavage and seniors Tami Stanton and Anna Sward work on layouts for the deadline.

While waiting for their extracurricular activities, students catch up on the latest gossip.

Mrs. Hawthorne uses the telephone to discuss business between classes.

One Week of School

The dreaded “Monday Morning” came so fast. The alarm clock rang so that the James Monroe students could get to school by 8:05. The tardy bell rang but, of course, it was Monday and they could have sworn that it was still 8:04 when they were marked tardy. Students got to school, started giving vivid descriptions of their weekends to their friends, and got back into their routines, and then Monday did not seem quite so bad.

Tuesday came, bringing with it tests, homework, papers, projects, quizzes, and the list went on. Talk of the weekend started drifting away, and the weekend seemed too far off to believe.

On Wednesday, students felt better about the week, seeing that they had made it half way through. Thoughts of the next weekend were starting to come into students minds and gave them something to look forward to.

By Thursday, the students could not wait much longer. All of the homework, tests, quizzes, etc. had put a lot of pressure on them, and they were ready for a break. Then finally, when they thought they could not wait any longer —

Friday arrived, bringing with it two days of sleeping in late, no homework, dates, and freedom from school. For two whole days, students could relax without worrying about school, while they did absolutely nothing — at least until Monday morning.

The James Monroe Band attended The North Stafford Band Invitational.

Academics Beyond the Classroom

James Monroe is one of the highest academic schools in the state of Virginia. During the mock election the students voted for the person they wanted to win the real election. Bush won at our school, as well as in the country's election. "Bill the cat," "Mickey Mouse," and Dukakis also received votes, but all lost. The students felt like they were real citizens of the United States of America. Para-mutual betting (horse racing), won in our school, also.

Drama is an important part of our school curriculum. A lot of the people in drama hoped to be professional actors/actresses, and they had gotten off to a good start. When asked why she likes drama, Rosella Sprow stated, "I take drama because it is a field that interests me. Acting just seems to be something natural and fun to me." While interviewing, it was discovered that a lot of the group enjoyed the changing behind stage but that is not why they took drama. Neil Day and Mark Miller both enjoyed acting. The drama class also had an excellent teacher: Ms. Hamway. Natasha McGuire stated, "She teaches very well. She is an excellent teacher and great friend." Neil Day also agreed she was the best because, "She helps us learn from each other."

Jack Rose, Jenny Freeman, and Rosella Sprow try to influence Ben Howson's vote. The mock election was a popular idea, proven by the voter turnout.

Pleasing the audience Natasha McGuire and Neil Day perform in "Roomers."

Ms. Sherry Morris, Mrs. Toni Chandler, Ms. Linda Trigg, Mrs. Mary Newman, Ms. Tracy Cooper, and Mrs. April Neeble practice for the lip sync contest in Ms. Morris' room.

During the Drama I class, Becky Barnett, Mrs. Marilyn Hamway, Niki Bennett, and Christine Palumbo enjoy their fellow classmates role playing.

Rhonda Branham, Lamonte Minor, Robin Branham, Teresa Turner, and Diem Trinh file into school.

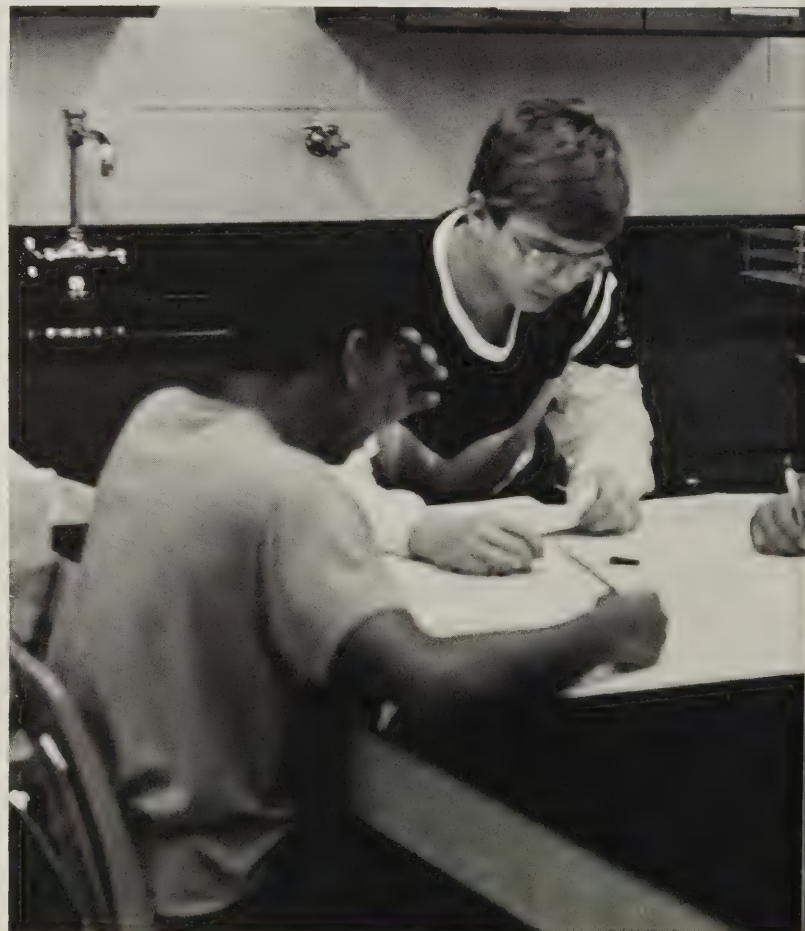

Craig Zaidman, freshman, shows that he is gifted and talented on the unicycle in addition to the classroom.

On Top of Learning

The James Monroe students have always been known for their high academic standards. The standards have been passed on from one student generation to the next. As the students finished school and moved out into the real world, these standards were carried with them.

Academics had always been important to the Jayem student body, especially when it came to competition with other schools. The students showed their academic superiority over their competition by scoring high on the SAT's in comparison with the other schools in Virginia as well as in the nation. For verbal scores the Jayem students scored 26 points over the nation's average and 24 points over Virginia's average. In Mathematics they scored 11 points over the nation's average and 15 points over Virginia's average. James Monroe, also, had the greatest number of tuition students of all the schools in the area. All these things together made James Monroe the best school of the area.

The Fun Side of Academics

Gym, Home Ec., and Shop were three fun academic classes. Many people in the tenth grade were happy that this was their last year to take gym, but some will go on to advanced gym. The gym students had fun while exercising off a few extra pounds. Home Ec. was taken by students to prepare themselves for life. They learned how to cook, sew, and care for themselves and others.

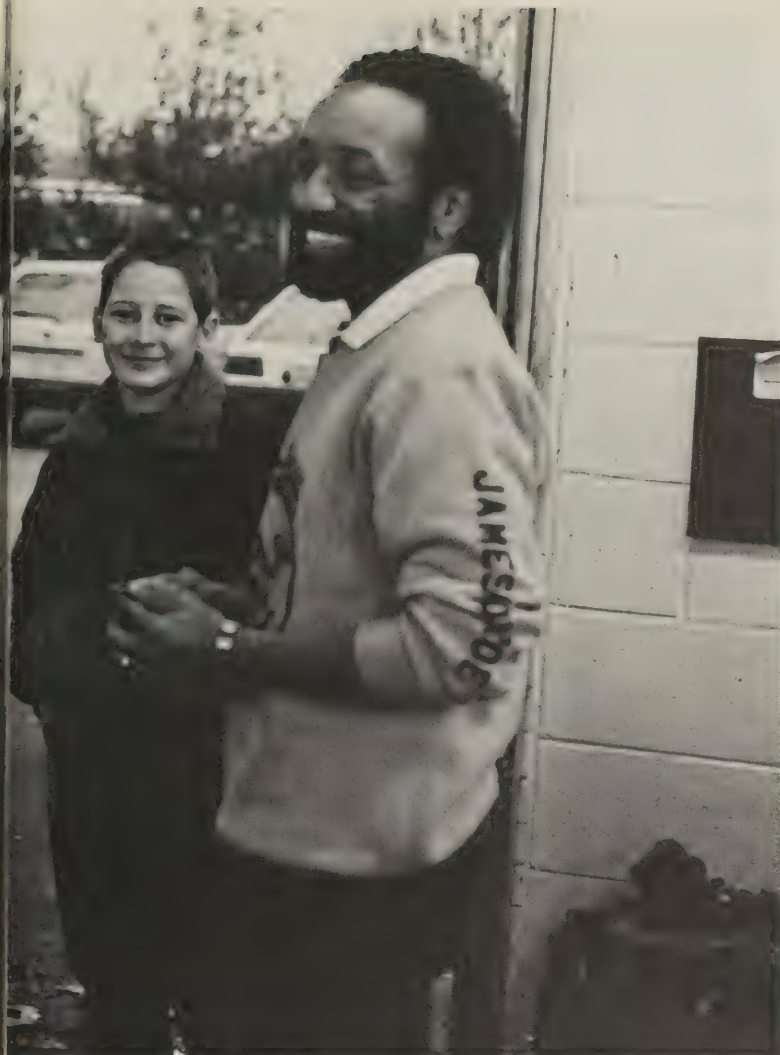

Shop was taken to prepare the students for working in the carpentry/ mechanical fields. Most students felt these classes were very rewarding, and that they worked very hard. Students generally enjoyed gym, home ec., and shop classes from beginning to end.

Rod Catlett and Bobby Hamilton laugh with Mr. Robinson, a much respected shop teacher.

Many of the advanced gym students participate in an outside gym activity. They had fun and also stayed in shape.

Cheryl Cooper, President of FHA, talks to former player of The Minnesota Vikings, Keith Norde, at the Baltimore Cluster Meeting.

Rod Catlett and Kevin Washington work on a lawnmower during shop class.

Lamonte Minor, Marquis Hamn, Todd Gallahan, Leon Harris, and Rod Catlett all cooperate to fix the lawn mower.

In the library, senior Janet Skinner relaxes after a long day at school.

Martin Thorsted and Rick Starling, seniors, in their study hall, get a head start on the next day's work.

In the nook seniors John Jeffress, Ben Howson and Jeff Burkett quickly eat before going on to their next class.

ARE YOU ACADEMICALLY INCLINED OR NOT?

Danny Howard and his fellow senior, Kim McGlue, get ready for their Christmas holiday.

1. If your friend got tickets for you to go to the U2 concert, which is on the same night that you have to study for Mrs. Zacchini's English test, would you ...
  - (a) go ahead and go knowing that you might fail the test.
  - (b) not go, sit home and pout but get some studying done.
  - (c) you wouldn't be caught dead at a U2 concert.
2. When you know that a big test is coming up, do you ...?
  - (a) study two weeks ahead of time.
  - (b) get a sudden case of the flu on the day of the test.
  - (c) cram the night before the test.
3. True, False or Maybe. You should study continuously instead of cramming the night before a test.
4. During class, do you ...?
  - (a) give your undivided attention to the teacher.
  - (b) sleep.
  - (c) do your homework for the next class.
5. Match the subject to its teacher:
  - (a) English
  - (b) Algebra I
  - (c) Government
  - (d) P.E.
  - (e) World History
  - (f) French I

- (1) Mrs. Sokol
- (2) Mr. Serbay
- (3) Mr. Waddell
- (4) Mrs. Zacchini
- (5) Mrs. Hansen
- (6) Mrs. Matalavage

Scores:

- (1) a-1; b-3; c-2
- (2) a-3; b-1; c-2
- (3) True-3; False-1; Maybe-2
- (4) a-3; b-1; c-2
- (5) Give yourself one point per correct answer.
a-4; b-6; c-1; d-2; e-3; f-5

(17-13) You are definitely the perfect student for every teacher. Straight A's always come your way!

(12-8) You have your days when you can make your share of A's but there are also days when F's can be seen every once and a while. You can be an honor roll student, but maybe you'll settle for being the average student, at least for now.

(7-0) Is "study" in your vocabulary? or has "party" taken its place? Maybe the words "tutor" or "summer school" will be heard soon. Try cracking those books! It may work.

What are the best excuses?

Every day students walked into class and when asked where their homework was, there was always an excuse. As a freshman, their stories were not that good. But with years of practice, the stories got better and better. By the time these students were seniors, they were masters at their "art" and they were able to con just about any teacher. Here are a few classic examples:

- "The dog ate it."
- "I left it at home."
- "I did it, but I lost it."
- "I got home late last night."
- "I did the wrong page."
- "My grandmother died and the family had to go to the funeral."
- "Cosby was on last night."

Neil Day, Bekah Bill, April Sessions, Rosella Sprow, and Mark Reynolds presented their play, "Roomers," to the school during seventh period in November.

Being a student at Jayem had its problems. Probably, the biggest problem of all was the bell. It was everyone's enemy throughout their high school years. During the week, getting from class to class was literally a "race against the clock," and not everyone made it.

At least once a day, a person could observe a student trying to convince his or her teacher that he or she really did have a good excuse for being tardy. Some of these excuses were true but usually the other 99% were not. So, you decide —

What were the best excuses for being tardy?

- "I accidentally walked into the wrong class."
- "I couldn't get my locker open."
- "I couldn't find my book/homework."
- "I had to use the bathroom."
- "My car/the bus broke down."
- "There was a good fight in the hall."
- "I dropped my books in the hall."
- "I fell asleep in my locker."

Natasha McGuire, Christine Palumbo, and Sarah Stein show off what they learned in drama class during "Roomers." Their play was a big success.

Sarah Stein and Christine Palumbo converse about health food during the play, "Roomers."

During "Roomers," Jesse Jennings does his Hari Krishna routine, while Rosella Sprow tries not to laugh.

Matt Hooper narrates the "Pardoner's Tale" during first semester. Many English classes attended this performance.

Organized Chaos

Freshmen Bekah Bill, Bronwen Clark, April Price, and Danielle Czahor look on as Denise Harris sends the ball skyward during 3rd period P.E.

From room 201, Mr. George Cralle's trigonometry formulas emanated. Students commented that Mr. Cralle taught well but quickly.

Some look happier than others after Mrs. Matalavage's third period Algebra I exam. Pictured are Adam Phelps, Liam Desanto, Phil Hayes, Kofi Johnson, and Brandi Spurling.

Freshmen Susie Thorsted and Lisa Waddell pay attention in drama class as Taylor Greenup daydreams in the background.

Students participate actively and listen intently to Mr. Calloway's lecture. Jennifer Ashley seemed to enjoy driver's ed.

Sports Jackets

Hanging in the gym there was a large sign titled "The Sportsman Creed." The last part of it stated that we were to remember at all times, we represented our school. The thought was to remain with students as they walked outside the school doors and onto the playing field.

Our football team was one to be proud of. With the changes and loss of players our varsity football team played many hard fought games. "The pressure was on considering having won two state championships in a row," stated senior Alfonso Brooks. Many people agreed with the statement that Alfonso Brooks had quoted. The junior varsity football team had an overall productive year.

Hockey played a hard fought year. Varsity hockey, although having a tough battle, learned something from the experience. Junior varsity hockey played a great season. The experience the JV team earned will benefit the team next year.

The girls basketball team placed second in districts. The year went by with a positive attitude possessed by all. Great job Lady Jackets.

Our teams represent the school as a whole. The seasonal sports went by without a hitch, moving from football to track to soccer to tennis. Congratulations to all.

Tyler Harding, Keller Williams, Rick Starling, Torre Van Lear, Morton Bach, Mark Miller, Tom Bennett, Jason Bill, Tom Clare, and John Warlick shone in the sun as well as in the district.

Jacket Racquet

The girls' tennis team had a good year; they played hard and it paid off. The star player for the team was Jennifer Edge, graduate. The next in rank was Libbie Farmer, senior, and following along were Maria Haglin, graduate, Sherry Meyer, senior, Amy Sokol, graduate, and Jenny Freeman, junior. The girls won the districts as a team and all singles lost except for Jennifer Edge. Both she and Libbie won doubles. In fact, the girls were undefeated.

The boys' tennis team had a spectacular season. They were undefeated with thirty-eight victories. The boys' team made it to the semi-finals in regionals. They won districts five years in a row and also went on to make second in the Stafford-Invitationals. The top players were Keller Williams, graduate, Rick Starling, senior, Morton Bach, graduate, and Tyler Harding, senior.

Both of these teams had great seasons and really showed what school spirit is.

Mark Miller swings hard to hit the ball back to his opponent.

Libbie Farmer, Sherry Meyer, and Jenny Freeman are ranked in the top six on JM's ladder.

SWING IN

Once again the Jayem golf team upheld their winning tradition. The team ended up the year with a record of 9-1 in the District with a loss to Culpeper, and an overall record of 9-2. Leading the team were Ross Cash and Matt Tobin.

There was also a surprise addition to the team this year: the arrival of the Gaffney brothers, John, Chris, and Lincoln. Golf coach Mr. Millard Thomas was proud of the entire team's performance throughout the year. The team capped off the season with a District title, Region II title, and 4th in the STATE tournament.

Senior Martin Thorsted and his brother, junior Mark Thorsted, compete in districts.

Freshman Hunter Cherwek runs fast, especially for such a hot day.

Coach Calloway goes over strategies with his runners before a meet.

Racing to Victory — title

Junior John Gaffney happens to look up when his picture is being taken on the practice field.

The cross country team had a total of 21 runners. The boys' team, with 15 runners, had one 1st place win against Orange and Caroline, four 2nd place wins against area teams, and two 3rd place wins.

The girls' team, with 6 runners, only participated in two meets but came in 1st against King George by one point and came in 2nd place against Louisa.

The boys' team had an opportunity to attend the All District meet against nine area teams and the Jacket team placed 4th. One girl, Angela Howard, was able to attend and she placed 14th.

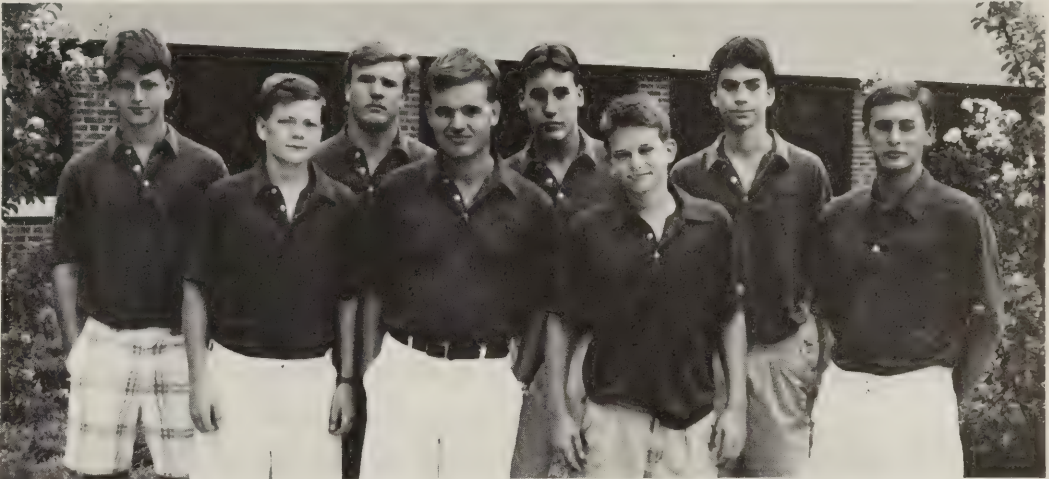

Mart Van Lear had an outstanding year. Competing in Districts, he placed 1st, and this was Mart's 4th year attending All District. He placed 2nd in Regionals and this was his 4th year also competing in All Regionals. Mart was able to go to All State for the 2nd year and placed 8th.

The rest of the boys' team was Marcus Pomeroy, Mark Thorsted, Martin Thorsted, Hunter Cherwek, Neil Day, Tyler Harding, Rob Ayres, Ron Rackey, Bill Keller, Phil Harding, John Conway, Brian McKeown, Jason Ayres, and Mark Miller. The girls' team was Angela Howard, Judith Schor, April Price, Rebekah Bill, and Mellisa Renninger.

With such an agreeable season the cross country team represented JM with class and pride.

Running Ahead Of The Class

Under the direction of head coach Dennis Keffer, assistant Nick Nichols and coaches Mary Rooney, Darrell Earman, and Mike Roadcap, the Track and Field team had a great season. Among the runners on the team were Bill Keller, senior, Dian Witter, junior, Joanne Ware, sophomore, Mart Van Lear, senior, Eric Bates, graduate, Alfonso Brooks, senior, and Warren Lewis, junior. Overall, the team did well against their opponents.

Three members of the team stood out as being exceptionally talented and were recognized as giving their all in every meet. Three individuals placed high enough in the district to go on to state. Mart Van Lear, Eric Bates, and Joanne Ware all went to state and ran well for the team.

The team won districts, placed second in the region, and placed third in the state.

Bill Keller, senior, gives it his all from start to finish. He ran well for the Jackets.

Swinging with Class

The varsity baseball team was a strong competitor in the Battlefield District. The team improved by two games in their record. The scores were extremely close in the losses they had but they just couldn't pull it out in the end. Eric Noakes proved to be an asset to the team with his pitching and batting skills. Larry Trout led the team in hits and R.B.I.'s and he also was a strong defensive player in the field.

The varsity players walk to the dugout after a team meeting. The meetings paid off as was evident.

The team watches intensely at a play on the field.

Larry was noted saying, "We've turned the baseball team around, but we have a long way to go." Many of the players were moved up from junior varsity and contributed positively to the team's effort.

Junior Varsity

The junior varsity team didn't do as well as the Varsity team. Their record was poor but their spirits were high. Mark Reynolds said, "At the beginning of the season the team was kind of chaotic but around the end of the season we started pulling together as a real team." Being a young team was hard work but they had lots of practice and determination. All in all, both teams realized that working together and having a positive attitude pays off in the long run.

Coach Rich Serbay ponders over starting line up for today's game. He worked his players hard and it paid off in the end.

Softball Perseverance Pays Off

The softball team had a decent season this year. They were 5-6 overall. Many of the players think that they did better than last year. They will probably do better next year considering that they only lost one player. The team lost the first four games of the season. Coach Denise Henderson and assistant coach Mary Crismon then switched around everyone's positions and they then started being aggressive. That move paid off. Janet Skinner made DH Second Team. Second Team short stop was Teresa Grant. Teresita Grant made second team catcher and Jennifer Jones made first team center-field. The team went on to tie with Culpeper for 4th all District.

Tammie Coghill, Jasmine Caster, and Rhonda Felton talk about the game coming up.

Where the terror begins!

This year's Varsity hockey team was led by captains Libbie Farmer and Mary Sladd Shelhorse and J.V. coach from last year, Elizabeth O'Toole.

This was an adjustment for the team because of a new coach. The season started out strong with the defeat of rival Culpeper. However the team went slightly down hill towards the middle of the season because of injuries to goalie Janet Skinner and half-back Dianna Blair. With Janet being the only goalie, J.V. goalie Jessica Hallberg took her place. Janet did come back with only two games left in the season.

The team was led by seniors Betsy Atkinson, Libbie Farmer, Kim Faulconer, Donna Krauss, Liz Lucey, Stephanie Mann, Jill Miller, Courtney Murphy, Ellen Sease, Mary Sledd Shelhorse, and Janet Skinner. The rest of the team was comprised of five juniors, one sophomore, and one freshman. Voted to the All-District teams were three-year starter Mary Sledd Shelhorse, junior starter Catherine Tiereny, and freshman Sarah Scott.

The J.V. team, led by new coach Ms. Donna Novak, also had a strong season. Under co-captains Christie Harold and Ashley Rosebrook, the team improved throughout the entire year, proving to be one of the toughest young teams in the area to beat.

Towards the end of the season both varsity and J.V. teams, with skills, team spirit, and aggressiveness, became tough teams.

Freshman Jessica Hallberg looks on, ready for the ball to come from the attack.

Senior Libbie Farmer makes a vertical pass to make an attempt towards the goal cage. Freshman Sarah Scott looks on.

Captains, Seniors Mary Sledd Shelhorse and Libbie Farmer, meet with the referees to discuss the rules for the game.

Senior Steve Hall maneuvers the ball to avoid a Caroline defender. Steve was a starter for the team this season.

Mike Martindale, senior, races to beat the ball before it reaches the sideline.

Junior Rich Lightner jumps to deflect the ball away from an opposing player.

Kickin'

This season was J.M.'s first shot at soccer. With the help of Mr. Simonpetri, the new team was formed. Through weeks of practice the players improved, but more importantly the team improved. The Jackets finished the season with a 5 win, 5 loss record. The group was said to have had "more spirit and teamwork" as the season progressed, reported one player. The team expects to have many returning members, and a winning upcoming season.

Goalie Charles Pasto returns the ball to his front line. Senior Adam Clingenpeel watches in awe.

Marcus Pomeroy, senior, dribbles the ball away from the opposition. Marcus was one of the top scorers for the team this season.

Emmanuel Symiou, sophomore, charges to score on a breakaway.

Drop, Kick, Punt

The 1988 Jayvee football team had a good season this year. Although the team only won three of their nine games, they played hard and never lost hope. Considering that many of the team's much needed players were injured during the season, the team played well. They triumphed over Chancellor (33-6), Stafford (30-6), and King George (34-6).

Eric Trout, linebacker/tightend, was one of the team's co-captains.

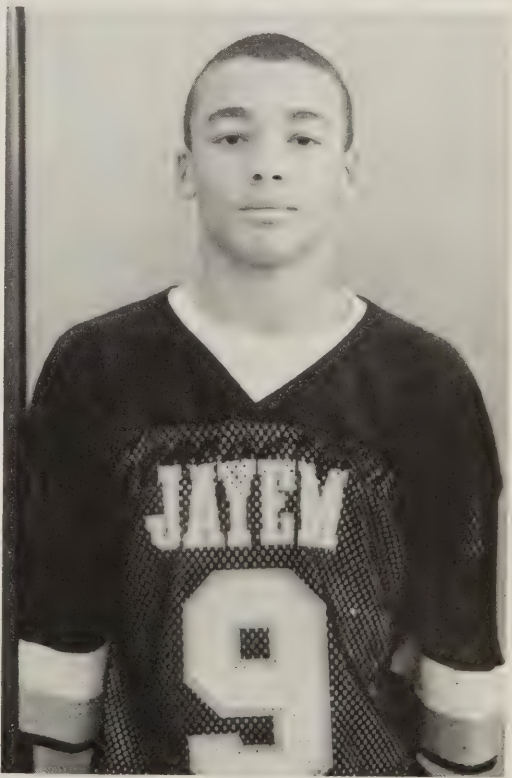

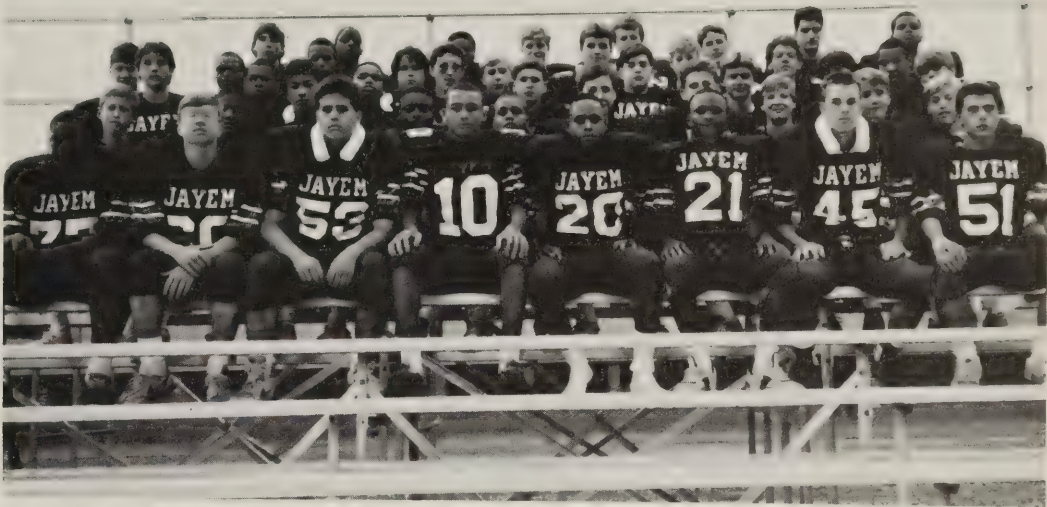

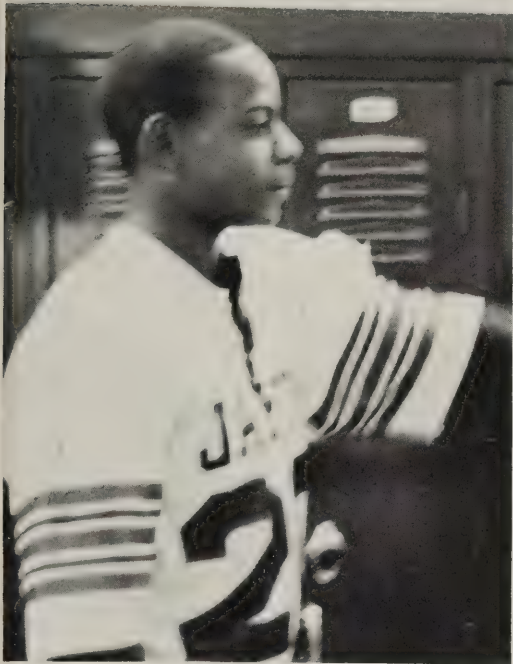

Emmanuel Symiou and Tee Hicks, sophomores, were two of the Junior Varsity football players that moved up to play with the Varsity.

No broken bones, no bruises as the team has just been given their uniforms.

Derick Byrd, quarterback, had a successful season and was the only freshman playing on varsity. Jayem kicks off to their opponents, Spotsylvania, in another hard-fought game.

Mike Rakes, junior, catches one in the end zone. This was his big touchdown in the Spotsylvania game.

Tackling The Season

Training began in early August during the hottest days of the summer. Players trudged to practice every morning to get psyched up for their first game against Stafford. JM fans crowded into the stadium to cheer on the team. Tension increased as the game was tied and went into overtime. Disappointment set in as Stafford scored the winning field goal. Although the team was disappointed about the loss of the first game, they fought back to win the Chancellor game.

The rest of the season was up and down and ended in 5 wins and 5 losses. The team may not have continued their winning streak from last year but they will always be "Taking Care of Business."

Coach Serbay talks to his team during a time out. He gave them advice about the next play.

Playing To Potential

The varsity football team had a good season. Their record was 5-5 for the year. With help from key players Tate Washington, wide receiver; Mike Rakes, wide receiver/defensive back; Darrell Durante, defensive end/fullback; Larry Trout, tight end; Eric Noakes, wide receiver/defensive back; Richard Christopher, defensive back; Shawn Williams, running back; and the rest of the team made their mark on the season.

Although the team did not play as well as they did last year, they defeated many teams; they defeated Chancellor, 41-15; Caroline, 21-0; Orange, 16-7; Spotsylvania, 21-0; and Louisa, 7-6.

For the season the team scored 136 points and allowed only 103 from their opponents. Leading in scoring was Shawn Williams, senior; he ran for 6 touchdowns and received one for a total of 42 points. Rich Lightner, junior, scored 24 points for the team with 4 field goals and 12 extra points. Senior Al Brooks helped the team with his total of 92 tackles, 49 of which were unassisted.

SHOOTING FOR THE WIN

Our girls' basketball team this year was outstanding. As Tammie Coghill stated, "This is definitely one of the best seasons that I have had since I have been on the varsity basketball team. We had a mature team this year." Tammie Coghill scored a total of two hundred and twenty-one points this season. Tammie made honorable mention for first team all district.

Lori Danielson, the girls' basketball coach, made the team practice hard so they could do their best at each game. When asked what she thought about the season, Lori Danielson said, "Great season, best season since I've been coaching here. I'm very proud of our team and the accomplishments that we achieved this year . . . I'm sad to see the season coming to an end and especially to see the seniors go. We had a great, fun season."

Teresa Grant made first team all district. She scored two hundred and ninety points during the season and stated, "Compared to the past years this year's team is very experienced." Jennifer Jones said, "I am glad to have been on a winning team for my last year in school."

On November 5, 1988, Jayem played Culpeper at Walker Grant. Unfortunately we lost: 46-63. That put us in second place in the Battlefield District.

Playing Hardball

Once again the varsity basketball team had to compete in a tough Battle-field district. The Jackets had to play a little harder in order to gain recognition among local teams in their division. Along with a few new members came a new leader, Coach Mike Trant, who brought new methods and ideas to the group, and assistant coach Mike Roadcap. Jayem also practiced everyday after school in the new Walker Grant gym. Together, this new combination promised to bring a successful season. The team started off the season winning their first two games against Stafford, an old rival, and Chancellor, the newest member to the division. Just as Jayem began to gain some confidence, they suffered a few defeats. One tremendous achievement for the seniors was the defeat of Courtland, at Courtland. Despite the rocky, up and down season, the team consisted of many individually talented players. Standouts were seniors Matt Tobin, Taiwan Jones, Richard Christopher, Glen Lanford, Chris Carter, Corey Dawson, and Ross Cash. Together with juniors Tate Washington, Benedict Muirhied and Mike Brooks and freshman Derick Byrd the team played hard the entire season and left the court with dignity, having a final record of 8-12.

Coach Trant instructs the team to be more aggressive, after the first quarter.

Glen Lanford, a senior, throws up a three pointer before the second half of the Stafford game.

Senior Taiwan Jones leaps in determination to make a lay-up. Taiwan was one of the leading scorers for the team this season.

Assistant coach, Mike Roadcap, and head coach, Mike Trant, observe the team's warmup prior to the opening game. The team went on to defeat the Indians.

Chris Carter, a senior, concentrates on shooting a perfect foul shot.

Darrell Durante tries to get around defending players.

Corey Dawson sinks a solid two against the Indians. Corey was one of the leading scorers.

A Class Above

Although the record does not show it, the J.V. basketball team, both players and coach, learned a lot this season. The effort of both coach and team paid off in the second half of the season when the J.V. Jackets played virtually even with every foe except one. Three of their games were decided by as few as five points.

The players developed a respect for Coach Haynes. Four regular players, Olatungi (Knuckles) Turner, Joby Coakley, Mark Miller, and John Blackmon agreed that their Sophomore year was fun as well as a good learning experience. All of them said they looked forward to carrying these good lessons into their varsity careers.

As for Coach Haynes, he had a knack for making practice and the road trips more fun. He gained the admiration of his players, and, in turn, enjoyed coaching our J.V.B.B.Y.J.'s.

A Class Within Itself

During the past year the Cheerleaders spent much of their time practicing at least twice a week and making spirit banners to cheer on the boys football and basketball teams. With their hard work and dedication, the cheerleaders of "88" and "89" upheld the spirit of James Monroe High.

Also, this past season there were two new cheerleading sponsors: Miss Trigg and Mrs. Crismon. One couldn't miss the two because either Miss Trigg was decked out in orange and black or Mrs. Crismon was standing in the hallway with her demerit pad making sure everyone had on the correct uniform for that day. They were great sponsors who did an excellent job getting tightts, pom poms, and letters. They even raised money by selling socks and handkerchiefs for these items.

Varsity Basketball Cheerleading: 1st row: Tiffany Jones, Kimber Richardson. 2nd row: Keisha Carter, Paula Young, Tara May, Dian Witter, Molly Tully, Lisa Smith, Rayna Brown.

Sponsor Miss Trigg points to Mrs. Crismon and says, "Don't you take a picture of me in this outfit and show off my fat arms and legs."

Varsity football cheerleaders, including seniors Molly Tully, Tiffany Bryant and junior Vicki Fink, discuss what pyramid would be appropriate for the school yearbook, while senior Jennifer Mann, and juniors Kathy Harris, Teresa Bolick, and Claiborne Ashby look on.

Sophomore Paige Perkins leads a cheer while at ECA cheerleading camp. Freshmen Jessica Hallberg, Carey Albertine, and Danielle Czahor follow along with her.

Senior Tiffany Jones and junior Kim Richardson share a laugh during a cheer at a basketball game. This was Kim Richardson's first year on varsity as co-captain and Tiffany Jones second year on varsity but first year as captain.

THE PERFECT STYLE

The gymnastics team consisted of senior Sherry Meyer, juniors Teresa Bolick, Vicki Fink, sophomore Kelly Green, and freshmen Karis Temple and Danielle Czahor.

The gymnastics coach, Renee Embrey, said there were some new faces added, the most notable being freshman Danielle Czahor.

The gymnastics team faced a tough district competition because of the return of Courtland and the addition of chancellor to the Battlefield District. They had a successful season, ending up 3-2 in the district and 4-3 overall. Strong performance came from senior Sherry Meyer and junior Teresa Bolick, team captain. They advanced to regional competition.

Sherry Meyer shows perfect performing style on the floor at Hugh Mercer.

Out on the Town

As an audience, community supporters came to sporting events or performances of sorts. We appreciated the support when it came to games of great meaning or events such as the Lip Sync. To these people we take our hats off and salute.

Many students chose to partake in community events by getting together and going places. Some met up at the mall or even at a friend's house. Everyone got together, talked, saw movies, or chose to walk downtown.

Parents play an important role by being involved. Some made donations to the cheerleaders by buying socks. The parents also chose to be involved by coming to open house or teacher conference night.

It was obvious that with everyone working together as one the year went by smoothly. The effort was by everyone to make this year what it was.

The Christian Church Disciples of Christ is just one of the many sights downtown. With the fall foliage it was even more spectacular.

ADVERTISEMENTS

GETTING FROM GIVING

Our school has taken part in a number of activities outside of the school. Key Club, for instance, raked leaves for people in the community and they collected canned foods for the hungry. The Key Club is "a group of fine young men who help the community strive for excellence in every day life," as Glen Lanford stated.

The Key Club has also shoveled snow, cleaned hotels, and helped senior citizens.

The National Honor Society sponsored the Blood Mobile. A number of students liked the idea and donated much needed blood. Thanks to those who helped.

The community has given James Monroe a lot of support by buying different items from students at different times throughout the year. Thanks to both the community and students. You have much "class."

Hunter Moore, senior, shows some of his creativity on the weekend.

Christie Harold, Polly Fields, Jessica Hallberg, Taylor Greenup, and Ashley Rosebrook have an afternoon discussion while waiting for rides.

Football receives incredible community support.

Schericka Gaskins and Sarah Stein support their school in curricular and extracurricular activities.

Enjoying the fall weather are Andrea King, Patricia Pettus, Mashonda Lucas, and Kim French.

Spice Up Your Printing

Some shops offer printing but not typesetting. Other shops offer graphics but not printing. We offer all three.

Our printing services include black and white, and color printing — for everything from business cards...to flyers...to newsletters...to books. Folding and collating too.

If you need typesetting, the number of typefaces available to you are endless. We are prepared to fulfill your type needs to meet your exact specifications or your wildest imagination.

Don't get stuck with a tasteless printer. Spice up your printing with M & B Graphics.

(AMSTELVEEN,

Some twenty years ago, give or take a year or two, three members of the James Monroe staff were out distinguishing themselves on the field of play. Mr. Green (left) set numerous school and district records as a four year letterman at halfback. Mr. Northern (right) lettered all four years as a standout quarterback and later as a receiver at Stafford High. Mr. Blackburn (center) helped start the Indians toward a series of winning seasons as a quarterback. Jayem was Stafford's chief rival in those years, but each of the men later saw brighter lights across the Rappahannock.

Following Seasons of Class

As it gets to the end of a school year, students reminisce back to the first days of school when they wandered the halls to find each classroom. As the first week went on, they had to get used to the new bell schedule and the new grading scale. And before the end of the first week, they had memorized new teachers' names, room numbers, and new locker combinations. Before the third week ended, summer news became old and new friends became good ones. Then, life had set into its patterns with a touch of class.

These patterns started to alter with the excitement of the fall sports. This excitement captured the class in every student as they cheered on their school. Days turned into months and time crept by towards the closing of another school year; but not before winter vacation came, reminding students that exams were near. And as the week of exams got closer, students hoped for the first big snow of winter. Towards the end of winter, spring fever set in; students jumped enthusiastically into school activities to get their mind off the pressures of school; however, spring was not far away.

Students wait in the hallway for the sounding of the bell to end another day of school.

Jesse Jennings, sophomore, practices for his upcoming play, "Roomers." "Roomers" was a great success with the students.

The first signs of spring appeared, bringing with them spring sports, the Senior play, the Senior trip, and, of course, graduation. Along with these spring events, seniors planned ahead for their future. Before students realized it, the final days of school were there and students had to think ahead for another change in their patterns of classes. And as the students stepped out of these school halls, they each took with them that James Monroe TOUCH OF CLASS.

Bayinnah Mitchell, sophomore, spends her free time in study hall catching up on some reading.

After suffering an injury, Carter Hansen settles for watching the football game from the sideline.

Tonya Parker, Lloyd Scott, Harry Rucker, Melvin Smith, Kenneth Washington, and Monica Johnson socialize after school.

The End

The Jackets warm-up before the second half. They anxiously awaited a victorious end!

Throughout their years in high school, the students took pride in the things they did and gave them their best. They truly demonstrated a "commitment to pride, tradition, and excellence." They worked hard this year, academically, artistically, and physically; they cherished their accomplishments and learned from their defeats. The things that the students received from James Monroe, knowledge, friendships, and precious memories, will remain with them for the rest of their lives. These students left their mark on the school in many different ways; but they also gained a lot from their school. This year's seniors can now leave Jayem with fond memories of their high school years: friendships long past, both academic and athletic accomplishments, acceptance of their mistakes, and thoughts of hope for the future. The combination of these elements indisputably show that the students at James Monroe will always have "A Touch of Class."
